Coorah

Log in / Create Account

ARTS + ENTERTAINMENT » SPORTS + RECREATION

March 06, 2014

Construction begins on White River zip line course

by Brian Weiss

@bweiss14

SLIDESHOW

White River zip line construction (Slideshow)
White River Zip Lines has begun construction on a $1 million zip line course that will feature eight different runs, speeds of 25 mph and a 1,000 foot finishing run.

By Brian Weiss
Click to View 13 slides

White River Zip Lines is the latest attraction to come from the same group behind White River Paintball and Indy Scream Park. Thy've begun construction on a $1 million course that will feature eight different zip line runs, 75-foot launch platforms and a 1,000-foot dual zip line.

The idea dates back to when Indianapolis hosted Super Bowl XLVI and a temporary zip line was built on Capital St.

"The popularity of it was actually bigger than most people had anticipated. People were selling their tickets for $200. There was a waiting list for it," White River Zip Lines Marketing Director Jon Pianki said.

Benjamin Nagengast, CEO of White River Zip Lines, traveled to several large zip line courses on the West Coast to research the possibility of building a permanent course in Indiana.

"We decided to gather some of the best minds in the industry to design and build a massive, state-of-the-art course that would be a permanent attraction in Indianapolis," Nagengast said.

Construction of the zip line course began on Jan. 6 and is on pace to be finished in mid to late April.

"We've been having a little bit of a problem with weather but not too bad. We're still pretty much on schedule. We were back about a week but we were able to catch up," project overseer Brad Alcoe said.

The course will cover a total distance of one mile and offer four dual zip lines for racing as well as a chance for travelers to reach speeds of 25 mph.

As far as a target audience, Pianki said, "Adventure seekers, anyone who really wants the experience of flying."

He also hopes it will attract not only people from Central Indiana and the rest of the state but out-of-state thrill seekers as well.

When finished the course will become one of the biggest in the Midwest.

Pianki didn't rule out expansion either.

"There is a step two, a step three of what we're actually planning on doing with these zip lines that is going to take it beyond just zip lines. It's going to be a lot of fun," Pianki said.

Tags: Sports + Recreation, White River Zip Lines, zip line, Anderson, Super Bowl, Jon Pianki, Slideshow, Feature

RELATED STORIES

Zip Line course opens to public

Get the feel of flying by zip lining! White River Zip Lines offers an 8-zip line course featuring a final 1,000 ft. zip line reaching speeds of 30 mph.

by Brian Weiss

SPEAKING OF...

Zip Line course opens to public

Get the feel of flying by zip lining! White River Zip Lines offers an 8-zip line course featuring a final 1,000 ft. zip line reaching speeds of 30 mph.

by Brian Weiss

More »

LATEST IN SPORTS + RECREATION

Miller Time Podcast Episode #71

Jon and Flava Dave detail the Pacers' blueprint to beat the Heat by Jon R. LaFollette

Indy AlleyCats break the Detroit Mechanix

The Indianapolis AlleyCats combined an offensive avalanche with tight defense to overpower the Detroit Mechanix 30–22 Saturday night in an American Ultimate Disc League game at Kuntz Stadium. by NUVO Editors

Recap/Photo Analysis: Indy Eleven v Ottawa FC

The Saturday match ended 2-4 and, though coaches, players and fans alike are beyond ready for a win, Indy continues to take to the field with an aggressive attack, creating numerous possibilities, just not finding the elusive net as often as necessary to earn a W.

by Rebecca Townsend

More »

READERS ALSO LIKED...

Airport scraps Bieber-themed sculpture

The Indianapolis International Airport cancelled the installation of Tre Reising's "#belieb" over concern that it focuses on "one particular celebrity, given recent news events." by Scott Shoger

Slideshow: Butler Drops to .500

The Butler Bulldogs can't keep up with the visiting Xavier Musketeers on Tuesday evening, falling 64-50. by TJ Foreman